Such a request may be referred to as a right to know request. Pursuant to California law, before disclosing specific pieces of personal information Lime Trading has collected about a resident, it will need to verify the resident’s identity. Lime Trading will base its initial response on the information provided in a request for information. Thereafter, if a resident would like Lime Trading to provide the specific information contained in its records or to delete records, Lime Trading will require additional information to verify their identity.

The additional information needed may vary based on how the resident has interacted with Lime Trading. Whenever feasible, Lime Trading will match the identifying information provided to the personal information it has in its records. For California residents who are customers, or financial professionals, Lime Trading will utilize its existing authentication practices.

Certain California residents have the right to request that Lime Trading delete any personal information about the California resident that Lime Trading may have collected and that it direct any service provider to delete the personal information from its records. However, pursuant to the CPRA, personal information may not be deleted in certain circumstances, including where maintenance of the personal information is necessary to: (i) complete the transaction for which the personal information was collected, to provide a good or service that was requested or that is reasonably anticipated within the context of an ongoing business relationship with Lime Trading, or to otherwise perform a contract between the resident and Lime Trading; (ii) to protect against or prosecute fraudulent or illegal activity and to detect security incidents; (iii) to enable solely internal uses that are reasonably aligned with a resident’s expectations based on his or her relationship with Lime Trading; (iv) to comply with a legal obligation; or (v) to otherwise use the information internally in a lawful manner that is compatible with the context in which the information was provided. For more information about these and other situations in which Lime Trading may not delete your information, please see California Civil Code Section 1798.105(d).

Pursuant to California law, before deleting any personal information as noted above, Lime Trading will need to verify the resident's identity.

A California resident may use an authorized agent to submit a right to know request or a request to delete. To use an authorized agent, the California resident must provide Lime Trading with written authorization. In addition, the California resident may be required to verify their own identity with Lime Trading. Lime Trading may deny a request from an agent who does not submit proof that they have been authorized by the California resident to act on their behalf. Such requirements, however, will not apply where a California resident has provided the authorized agent with power of attorney pursuant to California Probate Code sections 4000 to 4465.

A California resident has the right, at any time, to direct Lime Trading not to sell the personal information that it has indicated is being sold pursuant to the definition of sale contained in the CPRA. This right may be referred to as the right to opt out. Residents may opt out of the sale of personal information by clicking on the link found at the bottom of this page or by calling 212.824.5000. If Lime Trading has a good faith, reasonable and documented belief that a request to opt out is fraudulent, it may deny the request. A California resident may use an authorized agent to submit a request to opt out on the California resident's behalf. The California resident must provide the authorized agent with written authorization to do so. Lime Trading may deny a request from an authorized agent who does not submit proof that they have been authorized by the California resident to act on the California resident's behalf.

In addition, Lime Trading does not and will not sell the personal information of a California resident it has actual knowledge is under the age of 16 without affirmative authorization (known as "opt in").
